Food from the Faraway, in Indiana Posted on November 30, 2016 The North Shore at New Albany Chamber of Commerce's annual Food Festival had not one, but two offerings from Christmas-related theme, and there were many others that would make a proper holiday spread. One offering, and the food cart vendor featured, came from right here in Indiana. From the Waakwaus River near Indianapolis and the small town of Corydon, Petit Paris Gourmand St. Germain will be serving up what the label says is "traditional French bakery crafted with Old World recipes and crafted New World ingredients." The next offering comes from the town of Richmond in southern Clark County, a member of the 900-acre Brownson Nature Preserve. The Nature Preserve is a collaboration of dedicated individuals and organizations committed to protecting land and ensuring its ongoing viability and health for the good of nature, the people of Indiana, and the nation. The Nature Preserve includes one of Indiana's most beautiful natural resources, the Indiana Dunes. The Nature Preserve offers two different paths: the 1,600-acre Big Marsh
